HELPING STUDENTS AND SCHOOLS ACHIEVE THEIR BEST
Advocacy

WHAT DOES THAT MEAN TO YOU?
Should you advocate?

WHAT IS YOUR ETHICAL RESPONSIBILITY TO ADVOCATE?
Susan Jacob
What does NASP say about advocacy?

School psychologists have a special obligation to speak up for the rights and welfare of students and families, and to provide a voice to clients who cannot or do not wish to speak for themselves. Advocacy also occurs when school psychologists use their expertise in psychology and education to promote changes in schools, systems, and laws that will benefit schoolchildren, other students, and families.

Nothing in this code of ethics, however, should be construed as requiring school psychologists to engage in insubordination (willful disregard of an employer’s lawful instructions) or to file a complaint about school district practices with a federal or state regulatory agency as part of their advocacy efforts.
The balance of advocacy as a public school employee

The Individual
- Ethical Obligations
- Practices that support the profession
- Rights of individual child
- EBP for children

The School/District
- Legal Restrictions
- Pressures from administration
- Political capital
- School culture
What are your barriers to advocating?
Can you advocate?

WHAT DOES THE LAW SAY?
Case Law on advocating as a public employee

Take Away: You are protected to speak as a private citizen on issues that concern the general public.

Not on issues, such as your principal embarrassed you by undermining your recommendations at the last MEEGS meeting.

Case Law on advocating as a public employee

Take Away:

• Court distinguishes between speech that is part of your regular duty (not protected) and “citizen” speech (protected—as long as it does not interfere with functioning of the school, impair within-school relationships, or breach confidentiality)

What does the law mean for school psychologists?

- What would happen if a school psychologist spoke out in an appropriate, factual manner about legitimate concern related to the welfare of students and is subsequently fired or disciplined?

  - For example, what if a school psychologist submitted a news article about the use of disproportionate discipline practices at their school and how it is affecting minority children?

  - Or what if a school psychologist advocated with their legislator for a law to ban corporal punishment because they have seen first hand the harm of this practice used at their school?
What Oklahoma Law says:

“What Oklahoma Law says: Any official in this state who shall direct or authorize the expenditure of any public funds under his care, except as specifically authorized by law, to be used either in support of or in opposition to, any measure which is being referred to a vote of the people by means of the initiative or referendum, or which citizens of this state are attempting to have referred to a vote of the people by the initiative or referendum, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and the office held by such party shall be adjudged vacant and shall be filled in the manner prescribed by law.”

26 O.S.§16-119
What does the law mean?

What you cannot do

- School leaders cannot use school resources for election-related purposes.
- School phones and email cannot be used in order to support or oppose any candidate, petition, or question on the ballot.
- School employees and board members should avoid using district-issues computers, tablets, or phones for campaign purposes or in support of a petition drive.
- Supporters cannot be allowed to come into the school building during the school day or during school activities to campaign or to solicit signatures
- School district employees cannot campaign for or against a proposed ballot measure or candidate during time they are on the clock
- Information which support or opposes a candidate, ballot measure, or petition drive cannot be send home with students.

What does the law mean? What can you do?

- Write letters and emails using personal equipment/resources/time. When doing so, the individual must identify his/her role and state that he/she is speaking as a private citizen, not on behalf of the school district.

- Campaign door-to-door on their own time.

- Place signs in the yard of their homes (as long as the home is not on school property or within 300 feet of a ballot box).

- Donate personal resources to a campaign.

- Place a campaign bumper sticker on a personal vehicle.

What does the law mean?

What can you do?

- Provide information to employees and district patrons about a ballot measure and its potential impact on the district. This information must be factual in nature and must not advocate for or against a ballot measure.
- Spend money to encourage people to vote and remind them of voting days
- Allow forums on school district property and facilitate such forums.
- Permit teaching about a referendum and election process.
- Hold mock elections.
- Allow students to discuss electoral issues

What does the law mean? What can schools do?

- Develop an advocacy team
- Prepare talking point for the employees to advocate on the district’s behalf
- Ensure advocacy team members have been briefed on the key education issues
- Solicit names of interested employees and then select rotating teams from that list to represent the school district. Employees could not be required to serve on teams.
- These employees are not be charged leave for going to advocate, as long as they adhere to administrator’s requirements.
- Advocacy teams may travel using school vehicles.

Survival Strategies for Advocates

- Negotiate a job description that encompasses advocacy for evidence-based practices and the freedom to adhere to the NASP and APA ethics codes.
- Be cautious of positions offered by private companies, they are often “fire at will”.
- Join teachers’ unions to help ensure you are treated fairly in your advocacy efforts.
- Join and support your state association.
- Learn about views of candidates for local, state, and federal positions in the areas of policies and funding, curricula issues, children’s needs, and teachers’ union. VOTE.
- Build relationships.
- Document all advocacy actions carefully.
